The city council suddenly felt as rich as all get out last night when City Clerk Larry Rose told them that the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea owns land and improvements valued at $3,198,500. That first figure is three million.

The realty board appraisers worked up the list which is entitled "inventory of public owned lands and facilities" and is to be sent to the state controller. The value was set at what the property would bring if sold at the present moment for commercial development. The library would bring $250,000; the beach and dunes, $1,500,000, Devendorf Plaza $480,000, etc., etc.

The council didn't have long to glow over this. Mayor Frank Putnam announced that there had been a drastic underestimate on the cost of putting in drainage and paving Ocean Avenue, so much, in fact that gas tax money from the state would fall some $20,000 short of covering the cost. What to do? An assessment district? A co-operative job with the property owners? Up the property tax? No longer rich, now poor as mice, the city councilmen set next Wednesday night, 8:00 o'clock, to meet as a committee of the whole and wrestle.

Frank Lloyd, last night at sunset, stood amazed while a deer bounded across the beach just south of Ocean Avenue, plunged into the ocean, swam to Pebble Beach and disappeared across the golf course.

If you doubt this, says Mr. Lloyd, a mother and father and their small girl also witnessed the deer's dip. He later found them tracing the animal's footprints across the sand from Scenic Drive. He must have been in a state of deep astonishment because he forgot to ask their names, and he's a former editor and reporter.

Police Chief Clyde Klaumann and Officer William Ellis were in Watsonville yesterday attending a Zone Three police chiefs' meeting. These meetings are called every three months by State Attorney General Stanley Mosk to discuss police policy.

Passing the new zoning ordinance was simply a formality last night. The fireworks are not exhausted, and the discontent is great, among several councilmen as well as a vast group of citizens, but the opposition felt it had done everything and said everything possible, and the interim ordinance has run out.

The council has asked the planning commission to re-study several sections of the new ordinance, which creates the illusion that there is possibility of continuing the battle.

Councilman John Chitwood was not impressed by the re-study device. He voted no.

Charles O'Gara, attorney for Lloyd Tevis, whose property, along with Robert Stanton's, has been placed in a zone especially created for it, protested, not only what he termed discrimination against his client, but the "star chamber" method by which the ordinance had come into being. The committee system employed by the planning commission he termed a "mis-

Too Few People Chase Butterflies Says Robert Wind Who Has Chased Them, Also Elephants, "All Over"

By RAYLYN PENNEY

Robert G. Wind, a man who has spent his life chasing butterflies, believes his is an occupation which could use more converts.

Hundreds of youngsters all over the country have taken to butterfly chasing as a hobby, he says, but there are so relatively few professional entomologists scouring the jungles that some of the territory he covered years ago in search of specimens has never been re-entered by naturalists since.

Wind has netted insects "all over," which means the United States, Canada, Mexico, the Fiji Islands, New Zealand, Australia, New Guinea, the Solomon Islands, the Celebes, the Moluccas, China, Japan, and many other places with climates warm enough for the breeding of rare six-footed creatures.

It all started when he put himself through the University of California by catching and selling butterflies and other insects to collectors, museums and schools, and after he had graduated in entomology, he simply kept on traveling with his nets handy. It was what he liked best.

After his marriage, he and his wife Clo traveled together. Sharing her home (often a campsite in the jungle) with thousands of insects was something she minded not at all, her husband says.

According to Mr. Wind, the cartoonists' version of a net-waving bug man chasing a butterfly over rugged ground till he sinks up to his eyes in a quagmire is a quite valid picture.

Nothing has ever replaced the butterfly net as a useful implement. But there is more than that to the pursuit of butterflies. A bunch of rotten bananas can be used to attract some species, others will flock to a wet spot on a dry road. Bright scraps of paper pinned to leaves sometimes can serve as decoys, bringing similarly colored butterflies to join what they believe to be one of their own colony.

Mercurio Named State Examiner On Barber Board

Paul Mercurio, Carmel resident for 40 years, took oath of office Monday in Sacramento as a member of the State Board of Barbering Examiners. Governor Edmund G. Brown made the appointment on the recommendation of State Senator Fred Farr (D) of Carmel and Carmel Martin, Jr., Chairman of the Monterey County Democratic Central Committee.

Mercurio owns and operates the Pine Inn Barber Shop. He will continue to operate the business, but relinquish barbering.

Senator Farr stated yesterday, "Paul Mercurio is extremely well qualified to be a State examiner. He is a former president of the State Firemen's Association, president of the Carmel Lions Club and president of the Monterey Peninsula Barbers Union, Local 896, as well as being a greatly respected citizen. He will be an asset to the State Barbering Board."

Paul Mercurio came to live here in 1920. He was an active member of the Carmel Fire Department for 29 years, fire department captain for 20 years, and is still on the volunteer list in an honorary capacity. During World War II, Paul was Assistant Fire Chief at Fort Ord for two years (1942-43).

Starting Tuesday in San Francisco, Paul will travel about the State to give examinations in barbering schools from Tuesday through Friday of each week. He will also attend meetings of the State Board of Barbering Examiners in Sacramento. Every barber graduating from a California barbering school must pass examinations administered by the State Board of Examiners before receiving a license to practice.

"I will be away practically all the time," Paul says, "but home weekends." This will enable him to continue to take his place in the Sunday golf foursome of ten years' standing.

He and his wife, Ynez, have one daughter, Yvonne, now the wife of Louis Holtzhauer and a Peninsula resident.

Council Gives Its Blessing To 36 More Pines For Carmel

At last night's city council meeting, the lands and improvements committee (Francis Whitaker and Eben Whittlesey) asked for and got council approval for the city street department to plant:

Twenty pines around the city owned-block bounded by Junipero, Torres, Fourth and Fifth; Eight pines on Dolores street, Fifth to Third, and six pines for Dolores street, First to Vista. These will be eight feet tall young trees. Also: ten foot-high (gallon container) pines, 10 wild lilac and 10 toyon bushes to cover and hold the fresh fill at the Mission and First street park site.

On the committee's request, the council asked a recommendation from the Carmel Forest Commission for pine planting on San Carlos between First and Vista, and San Carlos between Fourth and Fifth.

Francis Whitaker said that the street department has rearranged its program, postponing seal coating the streets scheduled for it, in favor of pine planting because, "the time for it is now" when the young trees can have the advantage of the rainy season.

During the past two months, the street department has planted 18 eight foot pines in tree holes made

Little Amusement In Life On German Farms Joe Goodrick Reports

By MARJORY LLOYD

Joe Goodrick, 31 year old Carmel Valley farmer, returned home two weeks ago from six months in Germany under the International Farm Youth Exchange Program, with all expenses paid by the National 4-H Foundation. He traveled abroad by ship from Montreal, Canada, with other nationally selected IFYE exchangees from all over the United States, and sailed home from Rotterdam to New York with a similar group, 42 in number. Five of the young men, between the ages of 20-31, like Joe, spent their time in Europe on German farms.

In Germany, Joe lived and worked with five farm families. They spoke no English, he no German at first, but as time progressed, learned to communicate in the language of his hosts.

"My grammar was not so good but I soon could carry on a conversation," he remarks.

The first family with whom Joe stayed farmed near Dusseldorf. He was with them for six weeks, then went for a month to a farm in the Saarland and another farm, for a month, in Bavaria in the Unterfranken district. He next worked and lived for a month on a mountain farm in the Allgau Alpine area between the Tirol and Bavaria, near Lake Constance and the Swiss border. Lastly he was on a north German farm near the Baltic Sea and the town of Brodersdorf for five weeks. The farming was all diversified except in Allgau where Joe worked on a dairy farm. Here there were 70 head of Brown Swiss cows, milked twice a day. The morning milk was bottled and sold in the nearby

Students To Present Wilder's Our Town Here This Week End

The Carmel High School drama class will present Thornton Wilder's Our Town tonight, tomorrow and Saturday evenings at 8:00 o'clock in the school cafeteria. The production, first this year, will be staged in theatre-in-the-round manner. Seating capacity will be limited to 130 persons each evening so that a feeling of intimacy will be obtained and each student actor will have an opportunity to work in a situation other than the proscenium stage. The Wilder play was chosen for production as its simple message seems to the students timely in this age of growing complexity.

MONTEREY PENINSULA COLLEGE FACES NEW ELIGIBILITY CODE

Recruiting of athletes as it has been practiced in junior college circles during recent years will be a thing of the past starting next July when the new junior college eligibility code goes into effect. In past years, junior college coaches could roam into high school districts not affiliated with a junior college district and pick off the prize athletes by dazzling talk about the educational advantages of their own particular junior college. However, the new statewide junior college eligibility code makes it mandatory for athletes to attend the nearest junior college to their high school if they wish to participate in junior college sports. Besides tightening up on the free area high school districts, the junior college moguls also put the damper on eligibility for out-of-state students. Athletes who are not graduates of California high schools will not be allowed to participate in junior college athletics in California.

How will this new ruling affect the Monterey Junior College? Coach George Porter, athletic director for the Lobos, feels that the ruling hurts the small junior college and makes the large school even more powerful. This year's Lobo football squad is for the most part recruited from free areas and has very few players from the district's four high schools. Porter feels there is enough good talent graduating from Monterey, Carmel, Pacific Grove, and Junipero to stock adequately the Lobo athletic teams. With the new code, it must be assumed that more of the local preps will matriculate at MPC and give the Lobos more of a homegrown look.

Although no realignment of the Coast JC Conference is planned for next year, it appears certain the large junior colleges (Foothill and San Jose) will be too powerful for the likes of Hartnell and Monterey, and will be shoved into the Big Eight with San Francisco City College, San Mateo, Sacramento, and the other big ones.

PADRE CAGERS WHIP LIVE OAK; LOSE TO CERES

Carmel High's varsity basketball team got off to a good start in league play last Friday night as it clipped the hustling Live Oak Acorns, 37 to 33, in a typical early season game. The Padres were in front all the way and were able to keep game control as the Wilkin twins and Scott Forbes picked off most of the rebounds.

Carmel's lightweight quintet ran into too much speed in Friday's prelim and dropped a 43-28 decision to the swift Acorn Babes. The Little Padres played the winners on even terms during the first quarter but dropped behind, 19 to 14, at the half and couldn't close the margin against the fast-moving Morgan Hill lads.

Scott Forbes led the Carmel shooters in posting the first win for the Padres. The 6-2 forward hit for 12 points and did an outstanding rebounding job on the offensive board. Bob Little chipped in with 10 points followed by Jim Brown's 5 and Mike Draper's 4. Steady defensive play by John Wilkin, Mike Draper, and Jim Brown served to throttle the Live Oak attack for most of the game, but Jim Palma, a scrambling forward, picked up the game's high-point honors with 19 points.

Coach Harold Lippstreau's lightweight crew suffered from the usual early-season passing troubles and made too many mistakes to keep up with the more experienced Live Oak gang. Jose Fernandez, speedy freshman forward, was the top scorer for the Little Padres, hitting for 8 points. Teddy Leidig put six markers on the board as did Bob Wells. John Lefler and John Moffatt found the range for 4 points and each did an outstanding job of rebounding.

Saturday night, the Padres entertained the junior-varsity and varsity teams from Ceres High School with the Carmel jayvees finishing in front and the varsity getting clipped by the valley boys, 39 to 36. Ceres' six-man varsity squad surged back from an 18-17 halftime deficit to outplay Coach Dan Yurkovich's charges in the last two periods to pick up the victory.

Carmel's scoring was pretty evenly divided in the varsity tilt with Jim Brown and Chris Wilkin each getting 8 points, Scott Forbes and Mike Draper came through with 6 apiece, and Bob Little finding the range for 5. Ceres' John Evans, a smooth-working forward, tanked 10 points in leading his mates to victory.

Coach Dick Lawitzke's junior-varsity played under wraps most of the way and had an easy time downing the outmanned Ceres Jayvee crew. With Pete Morse and Bob Palma leading the way, the Padres broke into an early lead and had the game salted away by the halftime intermission. Morse had 9 points to lead all scorers and Palma's 8 markers put him in the runner-up position. Jim Kelley was the top rebounder for the Padres while Rick Baldwin and Barry Sherman did an excellent job of playmaking. Off their showing against Ceres, the Carmel junior-varsity quintet could be tough to handle in the CCAL jayvee circuit.

Next hoop action for the Padres is slated for Gustine tonight when the Red & Gray varsity opens the action in the Gustine Invitational Tournament against the strong LeGrande five. The Padres were scheduled to play San Jose's Bucher High Tuesday afternoon but a foul-up in the scheduling forced a last-minute cancellation.

PADRE VARSITY PLAYS IN GUSTINE TOURNAMENT TONIGHT

Coach Dan Yurkovich takes his fifteen-man varsity basketball squad to Gustine tonight for action in the Annual Invitational Tournament. One of the most popular hoop tournaments in Northern California, the Gustine Invitational draws most of the topflight small schools in the San Joaquin Valley plus the Carmel Padres. After winning the tournament in 1958, the Padres had rough sledding last year when they were figured to be a shoo-in to pick up most of the gold. Carmel is the only outsider in the Gustine tourney but it comes by the honor quite naturally since Gustine has played in every Carmel tournament since its inception in 1946.

Le Grande High School will provide the opposition for the Padres in tonight's 7:00 o'clock game. Touted as one of the favorites in the tourney, Le Grande is a big rangy ball club with a pair of hot-shooting forwards. The Padres will have a get-even motive in tonight's game since Le Grande upset the local preps in last year's action.

Music On The Peninsula

BY MARY LINDSAY-OLIVER

The Monterey County Symphony Orchestra played to another packed auditorium at the Monterey Opera House last night. Being in Britain at the time of the first concert of the season, I did not see the "turned away" overflow at Sunset, but the larger house seating capacity must have practically equalled the situation. It proved, as have other events, how vitally necessary an adequate creation of better housing for our growing orchestra and other affairs is needed in this neighborhood, for the cold draughts and awkwardly lighted and seated stage made an uncomfortable atmosphere for concentrated listening, but to which the players were happily oblivious, for they gave of their best efforts, stepped up from their Monday Salinas concert, and added another significant milestone to development of the local organization that is gaining steadily in capacity and achievement, as well as name, among the now hundreds of symphonic groups in America. For this the work of several conductors is responsible.

We are fortunate today in having Ronald Ondrejka wielding the baton, and we look forward to greater achievement immediately ahead. In his manner of conducting Ondrejka, without excessive actions, is reaching and stirring response in the group that reflects not only thorough drill but spiritual and emotional concepts of the music in hand with a restraint that is almost an understatement of the depth of feeling and passion of which he is capable, and his modesty of approach and presentation is refreshingly sincere in this day of "great I ams!" The discriminating Peninsula public consequently has embraced Ronald Ondrejka and his artistry while also evaluating the outstanding talents of which there are many in the orchestra and without which the results obtained in last nights' performance could not have taken place.

From the dramatic opening of the Brahms Tragic Overture to the crisp ending of the Beethoven Violin Concerto, tone, phrasing and nuance with strong precision, and attacks with cleanly defined interweaving melodic episodes from various instruments were carried forward effectively with a perception by the entire orchestra that would have done credit to a major symphony orchestra. The "esprit de corps" of the personnel is evolving an instrument of exceptional value which the whole locality should be proud to support.

While the Brahms Overture gave opportunity for varied technique, dynamics, changed tempos and rhythms, the finesse of some of the melodic utterances in this and the Dvorak Symphony, particularly the second movement, were finely handled and adroitly introduced. The whole Dvorak Symphony received an individual interpretation which resulted in many recalls for conductor and orchestra. But it was perhaps the Beethoven work that most stirred the audience to acclaim, together with the expert playing of soloist Stanley Plummer. This young artist, now well known, has progressed immensely in freedom of expression as well as technical command. His cadenzas were exceptionally brilliant in every respect. Indeed, he seems to have found himself fully. He is, besides, a warm and sympathetic personality. The orchestra supported him in good rapport and applauded him, and all were enthusiastically recalled for genuine thanks from a pleased representative Peninsula audience.

A social hour was held afterwards so that subscribers could meet conductor, soloist, and players. It was all a banner occasion, and we look forward to the spring and summer concerts at Salinas, and Sunset Auditorium, Carmel.

McKEEVERS HONEYMOON

Marlin McKeever, all American football player at the University of Southern California, and his bride since Saturday, the former Suzie Blackman, honeymooned at Highlands Inn until yesterday.

Too Few People Chase Butterflies Says Robert Wind

cessfully eluded Wind's net so long that he finally found a caterpillar and raised his own. (The trick to that, of course, is in discovering the right kind of caterpillar.)

In the course of his unusual odyssey, the Peninsula collector found hundreds of species that weren't even named yet. Several have been named after him, among them the Enphydrayas Windi. He has also netted several species in the interior of the Celebes and New Guinea which not only had never been caught before, but haven't ever been caught since because no one has been there since.

And along with the butterflies, Wind has netted a whole galaxy of additional insects, including 21-inch walking sticks, beetles as big as a man's fist, enormous scorpions, and tarantulas of a size to eat small animals.

As a matter of note for those interested, Mr. Wind says Monterey County is not a bad place to catch unusual and beautiful butterflies. Some 100 separate species thrive in the warmer areas here and about 480 species can be caught in California, which has more different kinds of butterflies than any other state. (We're wondering if Mr. Wind included Hawaii?)

A San Franciscan by birth, our butterfly man came to the Peninsula in 1950 to open the Pacific Grove Butterfly Trees museum and park. He is no longer connected with the museum but he owns a couple of gift shops on Monterey's Fisherman's Wharf, operates a vast, mostly mail-order animal and insect supply house and shop on Cannery Row, and recently brought his varied interests to Carmel when he opened a gift shop, Trade Winds, in Carmel Plaza. With a friend he also opened the Row's Outrigger Restaurant year before last.

While you'd think a butterfly man's collecting enthusiasm would stop short of things like elephants, in this case it has not. His supply business, which services schools, universities and private laboratories, includes stuffed elephants. He did not say how much demand there is for this sort of thing.

In addition to the naturalist, his wife and a multitude of dead insects, the Wind household on Congress Avenue in Pacific Grove includes a son, Robert N. He is interested in lizards and snakes.

All in all, chasing butterflies has been, for the Winds, something more than just a harmless outdoor sport.

His supply business alone calls for more butterflies than he himself can furnish, although in the field Wind counts on catching several hundred a day and has caught up to twelve hundred. So, much of his material comes from overseas agents, many of them members of primitive tribes whom Wind coached in the business of butterfly catching while he was there.

Only one other person that he knows of, Wind says, is in the same business as his has become, and that is a New Yorker who handles butterflies alone, no elephants.

When you go out after the butterflies, Wind suggests, take along a camera as well as a net. Many of his specimens are humanely killed, then filed, wings folded, in envelopes in tiny containers. But he has also taken many hundreds of feet of film of the live creatures in their own habitat, and these form records equally valuable to a naturalist, or to a lover of beautiful insects, which anyone may easily become.

Snyder Recommended As Co-ordinator For Citizens Group

When Carmel School District trustees meet on Wednesday night, 7:30 o'clock, in the High School music building, they will consider a report on the December joint meeting of the Citizens Educational Comittee and Professional Study Committee (superintendent, curriculum coordinator and principals).

The two groups have requested that Dr. Richard Snyder, trustee, serve as coordinator between the board, and the citizens and professional committees. Last week the two committees endorsed a report prepared by Dr. Snyder defining the role of the citizens educational committee.

Trustees will also consider a request from Frederick Scott for a high school graduation diploma; receive an architect's programming report on the junior high school planned for the Valley mouth site; consider an architect's plot plan for additions to Carmelo School; appoint an architect for River School expansion. An amount of $15,000 is budgeted for expansion of faculty work and supply rooms at River, also equipment and furniture. The Elston and Cranston architectural firm did the original plans for the building.

Carmel district's participation in use of a joint private telephone line to the County Court House from all Peninsula schools will be discussed by trustees. They will also consider realignment of an easement on land owned by Dudley Swim to avoid trenching under proposed buildings for a future water line at the junior high school site.

Also on the school board agenda will be a road at Tularcitos site, proposed as a joint project. Negotiations are still under way between A. G. Metz and the school district concerning this matter.

School board members will also ratify a letter to Mrs. William Hatton informing her that they plan to make final payment for the 45-acre junior high site on February 8 or soon after, as soon as bond money is available.

Construction as the junior high site will begin on August 8, the letter states.

Taxes May Be Paid As Late As Monday After That—Ouch

Since December 10 falls on Saturday, there is a little leeway for tax payers to mail in their first installment of county taxes, Collector James T. Birch announced this week. Monday will be time enough.

If a tax remittance envelope bears a post office cancellation mark which is prior to 5:00 p. m. December 12 (Monday) it will be accepted by County Tax Collector Birch without penalty.

Later than that, the penalties mount up breathlessly as forgetful taxpayers have found out to the ache of their pocketbooks.

EXCEEDS YEAR'S QUOTA

The Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross has exceeded it's year's quota for blood donations as a result of the Pearl Harbor Day drawing yesterday.

Edgar Bissantz, chapter chairman, is delighted with the community's response. One hundred and thirty-four persons came to the bloodmobile to give blood. Of these 121 were accepted, and each gave a pint of blood, according to Mrs. Derek Rayne, chairman of the Red Cross blood program.

Until yesterday, the Carmel chapter was behind in its blood quota for this year.

Uncut B Minor Mass, Art Of The Fuge On Festival Program

The Carmel Bach Festival executive committee, meeting Saturday at La Playa Hotel with Sandor Salgo, festival director, discussed program for the 1961 festival. Much of it cannot be decided upon until later, but the group approved an uncut production of the B Minor Mass to be given one performance on Sunday afternoon, 2:30 to 5:30 o'clock rather than afternoon and evening performances of a cut version.

They also approved a performance of The Art of the Fugue on one of the nights of the festival.

The committee received confirmation this week that Alice Ehlers, harpsichordist, will perform for the 1961 Festival. She was not available for this year's festival, but was heard and much appreciated by previous festival audiences.

"Since the death of Wanda Lawdowska, Alice Ehlers is regarded as the grande dame of the harpsichord," commented Mrs. MacKay.

At the annual meeting of the festival corporation recently, Fritz Wurzmann was elected president, succeeding the Reverend H. M. M. Nicholas. Serving with him are Mrs. Alexander Albert, first vice president; Mrs. Leonard Klene, second vice president; Arthur Lehmann, third vice president; Mrs. Walter Jennings, secretary; Peter J. Little Amusement In Life On German Farms Joe Goodrick Reports town; the evening milk was sent to a factory to be made into Ementhaler, the familiar Swiss cheese, with holes.

Joe says that the farm workday in Germany is longer than in this country. Often the day's work began at 4:00 o'clock in the morning and continued until 7:00 o'clock in the evening.

He reports the soil was below average, "poor quality" judged by American standards. However, the German farmers obtained a good crop yield by use of commercial fertilizers, some manure, good conservation and crop rotation. All the farms had one, up to three, Diesel engine wheel tractors.

There was not much time for amusement in German farming life, he observes. He did, though, visit the German Agricultural Fair in Cologne when he was on the Dusseldorf farm. This fair is similar to our State Fair, he reports. He also, while in the Saar, saw one of Shakespeare's plays performed in German, "and understood about three words." This was at the beginning of his six months in Germany.

Joe also attended harvest festivals, Erntefests, in three north German villages.

"Those people danced all night," he marvels, "the dances started about 8:00 in the evening and continued until 5:00 or 6:00 in the morning." They were held in large beer halls and the dances included many polkas.

"Almost everyone went, both young and old, several hundred persons altogether," Joe emphasizes.

The International Farm Youth Exchange program, under which Joe visited Germany, was started in 1948. It is financed by the National 4-H Foundation through private donors such as large organizations and service clubs. Young foreign farmers are brought to the United States to live on American farms under the same program.

Joe applied and was approved to go abroad as an IFYE exchange through the Carmel Valley County Agricultural Extension office. He was next selected as a State IFYE candidate in the Berkeley office of the same organization, then nationally in Washington, D.C.

He graduated from Sunset School, then Carmel High School in 1947. He attended Cal Poly in San Luis Obispo and spent two years in the Army, 18 months of this time stationed in Germany. He is a sheep and hog rancher in Carmel Valley and for five years was a 4-H Club leader.

Joe says his experiences in Germany were invaluable, the people were friendly, much more farming machinery is in use than when he was there seven years ago with the Army. He can hardly wait to go back.

"I haven't got a girl there, I just love Germany," he says.

DR. LAKE TO SPEAK AT ALL SAINTS' SUNDAY

Dr. Sylvia Lake, professor of philosophy and religion at Occidental College, Los Angeles, will speak at the Family Service at All Saints' Episcopal Church, 9:15 o'clock Sunday morning.

Dr. Lake is the widow of Kirsopp Lake, noted Biblical scholar. She is also an authority on the Bible herself and will discuss methods and value of modern Biblical criticism as a means to increase, not destroy, religious faith.

On Tuesday Dr. Lake will be a guest at the luncheon party to be given by The Reverend David Hill, All Saints' rector, for clergy and religious education directors.

Book And Arts Yule Party

Members and guests of the Book and Arts Society of the Carmel Foundation will exchange Christmas gifts at a meeting on Monday afternoon, 3:00 o'clock, in Town House. Gifts are not to exceed one dollar in cost.

Dr. Leigh Mudge will be the speaker on this occasion.

Circle Presents King Of Hearts On Friday Night

Sandra Powers, Errol Allan and Clifford Berry form an attractive triangle in the forthcoming production of King of Hearts at the Golden Bough Circle Theatre. All known locally for leading roles at the Circle, the Studio and the Wharf Theatre, they will pool their talents of Friday evening in a wickedly funny satirical comedy by Jean Kerr and Eleanor Brooke.

Allan impersonates a nationally renowned cartoonist, so concerned with his reputation among the intelligentsia that he looses the "kid audience" to simpler, less egocentric artists. Miss Powers plays his worshipful secretary, who discovers what a fatuous humbug he is only hours before their planned elopement. Berry is cast as a shy, undergraduate type who is hired to "ghost-write" the comic strip during their honeymoon, and ends by marrying the girl himself.

Suzette Harbin, veteran of many movie roles and a featured player in the Actors Workshop production of The Crucible in San Francisco, makes her local debut as an unimpressionable maid. Al Holliday contributes another of his drily humorous characterizations as a tippling cartoon-syndicate executive. Others in the cast include Barney Laiolo, in his first stage appearance, Mike Smith, and Margaret Phillips.

Bill Thompson, Chip Bates and an oversize dog bound on stage in the second act to compound the confusion and hilarity in the cartoonist's household.

The production has been directed, designed and lighted by Frederick Rider, who performed the same services for "Oh, Men! Oh, Women!" at the Circle three months ago. It aims for the same bright pace and comic sheen.

Following tomorrow's opening, King of Hearts plays Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings through January 29, excepting Christmas weekend.

PINK LADY DAY IN CARMEL

The "Pink Ladies" Volunteer workers for the Peninsula Community Hospital are staging a before Christmas sale of their Illustrated Directories at prominent locations throughout Carmel and Pebble Beach on Friday.

This is the time of year when the Directories will be most helpful in sending Christmas cards or invitations to Holiday affairs and being certain of the correct addresses, Mrs. Rhody Holt, in charge of distribution, points out.

"Visitors to Carmel will be delighted to carry home a book containing more beautiful photographs of this region than they could personally snap in a prolonged vacation here, as well as a fund of valuable information about the Monterey Peninsula," Mrs. Holt added.

The Directories may be purchased with Christmas wrapping for remembrance gifts to out-of-town friends. All money from sales is donated to the Building Fund of the new Hospital now under construction.

Mrs. Holt's assistants are Mrs. Charles Strosnider, Mrs. John Pattullo, Mrs. Lou Gold, Mrs. John S. Nelson and Mrs. Elmer Zanetta.

Art On The Peninsula

The Print Festival now at the Lawrence Drake Gallery, San Carlos and Eighth Avenue offers a cross section of contemporary American printmaking. The 25 artists represented include receivers of two Ford Foundation grants, five Tiffany awards and six Guggenheim fellowships. All of them have won other major awards. All are represented in the permanent collections of important museums in this country and abroad. The Museum of Modern Art, for example, owns 26 prints by Gabor Peterdi who was shown in a one man show at the Drake Gallery in August and is represented here by prints not previously exhibited.

The artists range in age from 25 to 65 and live on both coasts and in the middle west. Twenty are men and of the five women, one is a nun. They currently teach in the art departments of Cooper Union, New School, University of Pennsylvania, Yale University, Hunter College, Chicago Art Institute, San Francisco State College, Oregon State College, Los Angeles County Art Institute, Immaculate Heart College, California College of Arts and Crafts, University of Wisconsin and Indiana University.

Etchings, in color and black and white, are on display in the Festival by the following artists being shown at the Drake Gallery for the first time: Harold Altman of Milwaukee, now in Mexico; Kathan Brown who lives in Oklahoma and whose Old Testament series of prints are now on view in New York and here; Minna Citron of New York; John Coleman who was born in Germany, educated in England and now lives in Los Angeles; Ernest Freed, Head of the Department of Graphic Arts of the Los Angeles County Art Institute; Dr. Gordon W. Gilkey, Head of the Art Department at Oregon State College; Gerson Leiber of New York who was named Guest of Honor in the Bay Printmakers' Society Exhibition for 1959 and was given a one man show at the Oakland Museum in October of this year; Karl Schrag, born in Germany and in this country since 1938, was one of twelve artists chosen for a retrospective exhibition organized by the American Federation of Arts. It opened at the Brooklyn Museum in February and will travel for two years.

Lithographs in the Festival include those by Adolf Dehn, A.N.A., distinguished American painter and printmaker; and Max Kahn, born in Russia, resident of Illinois since 1907, consistent top award winner for both lithography and painting.

Dorothy Bowman and Howard Bradford of Big Sur, now in Rome, are showing serigraphs. As are Sister Corita, I.H.M. and Angelo Savelli. Sister Mary Corita, noted equally for creative teaching and creative printmaking has 35 prints in the show. Savelli, born in Italy and now living in New York is also an abstract painter and currently has a one man show at the University of Minnesota.

There are woodcuts by other artists new to the gallery such as: LaVerne Krause, Portland: Rudy Pozzatti, Associate Professor of Art in Indiana University; Don LaViere Turner who lives in Glendora, California; and Adja Yunkers, born in Latvia, now living in New York and one of the two recipients of a $10,000 Ford Foundation Grant in this show.

Also exhibited in the Print Festival is the work of artists previously given one man shows at the Drake Gallery. They are Dennis Beall, Robert Bechtle, Robert Broner, Leonard Edmondson, John Ihle, and Carol Summers.

The exhibition will be on view through December 30.

This month jewelry by Jean Hopkins is being featured at the Doris Birkland Art Studio. The exhibit consists of silver earrings, pendants, pins, and brooches, representing some of the most original and finely crafted contemporary jewelry in America.

As this is its first showing on the West Coast, Peninsulites would know of her mainly through her exhibit at the invitational Second Biennial Exhibition of Jewelry, 1957-1958.

A member of the art department staff at Arizona State University, Mrs. Hopkins received her B.A. from the University of California at Berkeley and her M.A. from Arizona State College at Tempe. She pursued advanced studies at the University of Colorado and the California College of Fine Arts.

She is credited with the surge of interest in modern jewelry in the Southwest, and under her leadership, many of the silversmiths and lapidarists in that area have gained national prestige.

Her jewelry is sometimes ab-

Take Your Gifts For Co. Hospital To Carmel Red Cross

Three local organizations, that do not wish to be identified, each Christmas send brightly wrapped packages to middle-aged and elderly shut-in patients at the County Hospital, who would otherwise not be remembered. A spokesman for these organizations reports that there will be 200 such patients this year and community help with the project will be appreciated.

The Carmel chapter of the American Red Cross will take any packages to the hospital and place them under trees the Thursday before Christmas. Items in the parcels may be toilet articles, handkerchiefs, cigarettes, tobacco, ruled writing paper, postcards, unused Christmas cards. A list of the contents should be attached loosely to the packages.

This year the hospital staff plans to place 37 Christmas trees in various parts of the hospital. Gifts of decorations and lights will be appreciated.

A year-round need for the children's ward is Holgate toys. Any person wishing to donate used toys in this category may take them to the Red Cross chapter house. Red Cross volunteers visit the hospital frequently. No children's Christmas packages are required.

Any organization wishing to send Christmas cards to County hospital shut-ins may obtain a list of names from Miss Lois Baughman, Box 1611, Salinas.

stract, sometimes expressionistic, but always expressive. Her "Flight" brooch and her "Adventure in Music" pendant are masterpieces of 3-dimensional expressions of complex conceptions. With sharpness and the utmost in clarity, her combined craftsmanship and vision are outstanding in an age of slackening discipline.

The Doris Birkland Art Studio is celebrating its first year on Cannery Row, Monterey, with an open house on Sunday afternoon from 3:00 to 6:00 o'clock.

The studio has brought to the Peninsula handcrafts from some of the leading craftsmen in America. Included among the one-man shows have been:

Grace Roberts enamels (former president of the Washington D.C. Kiln Club, 1957-1958); Dr. Herbert Sanders ceramics (Head ceramics department, San Jose State); Valborg Gravander weaving (Mill Valley weaver, 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition, San Francisco); F. Carlton Ball ceramics (Head ceramics department, USC); Jean Hopkins jewelry (professor, art department Arizona State University); Doris Aller, fiberglass and wood mosaics (art consultant Sunset magazine, author of Sunset Mosaics Book); Alexander Jadan watercolors (Carmel).

Postmaster Strong Announces Holiday Hours At the P. O.

Postmaster Fred Strong announces that, beginning Monday, post office windows will be open from 8:00 o'clock in the morning until 6:00 o'clock in the evening, Mondays through Fridays, to take care of Christmas mailing and parcel delivery.

For the first time in 20 years, parcels will be distributed at the post office instead of at a separate parcel station. This will be a "big improvement" in post office service, Mr. Strong states. The enlarged post office premises make the separate parcel quarters unnecessary.

Saturdays, until Christmas, the windows will be open until noon, as usual. After that time there will be service available Saturdays until 6:00 o'clock, although the full post office staff will not be on duty.

The Dolores Street entrance to the post office was closed this week to permit correction of a drainage problem. During last week's storm water drained into a nearby beauty shop. Maurice Hanssens, one of the owners of the post office property, was rectifying the drainage situation this week.

Poems which won honorable mention in the 1960 high school poetry contest, sponsored by the Arena Blanca Chapter of Chaparral Poets and the Carmel Pine Cone.

Dianne Kotowski's poem went on to win fourth place in the 1960 state federation contest.

THAT TIME

That time night came quickly,
Enveloping everything and everybody,
Spreading fear behind its cloak of darkness,
And forcefully handicapping the earth to rest.
All was quiet, all was still
Except for the hollow ring of silence.
That time there was a blinding flash,
Intense heat,
And searing pain.

All the world's leaders and the summit's great men
Couldn't put earth together again.

Hi-diddle-diddle, no cat and no fiddle.
"War," they cried, "Peace is too dull."
Planet three blew up much too soon.

But that time it wasn't real.
It was only a nightmare, and the world was given
Another chance,
Another conference,
Another try to maintain peace.
The stupidity of all men reigned,
The wisdom of a few was overcome,
And the nightmare became a reality.
We existed no more.

Dianne Kotowski,
Pacific Grove High School

OVER OUR GARDEN

Over our garden an airplane flew,
But nothing there cared nor knew.
Monarch butterflies chased each other;
A young quail cried — seeking its mother.
The rained-on roses, with heavy heads
Flaunted yellow, pinks and reds.
A hummingbird on the late larkspur,
Never knew what went over her.
Crickets chirped, and a blinking toad
Watched for flies on the gravel road.
They don't care how smart men are —
To go through life in a flying car!
To a yellow bee on a marigold
The adventure sounds a trifle old.

ATTEMPTING THE IMPOSSIBLE

You who brought me into this world,
I cannot even thank.
Not with money, gifts, nor words . . .
Nothing . . . yet I yearn to.
'Tis strange that God gave woman
The gift to bear the child,
But he gave no child the words to thank
The mother for her task.
Not a thousand verses just like this
Could speak what I'd like to say,
Nor a million hugs and kisses
Could tell you how I love you.
And yet I have to tell you . . .
The urge tries to make me speak,
But love is too great to be proven;
Greater than we think.

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg

So many writers are doing books on the Civil War that it is impossible to keep up with them. This is due to the centennial, of course, but the grim thought which keeps coming to mind is that we shall presumably have until 1964 to keep reading reviews, balancing budgets, evaluating what we already have, and desperately hoping that we are not purchasing the ephemeral and neglecting the items of really permanent value. After four more years it may be said of some public libraries that their collections are small except for the books on the Civil War, but man-oh-man, are they complete in that field!!! A consummation devoutly to be avoided. We are buying what we can of the books done by reputable authorities in this field, and we are keeping our fingers crossed.

We can uncross the fingers when we choose a book by Clifford Dowdey, a native Virginian, who has been called the outstanding living writer on the Confederacy. His new book is called Lee's Last Campaign, the Story of Lee and His Men Against Grant—1864. Because of the bureaucratic methods of President Davis, Lee was never allowed the authority or the control to counter the multi-pronged attacks of the Union army. He was fighting on two fronts: Grant before him and Davis to the rear.

Some readers are not intrigued by books about the war which take up certain battles minute by minute of a crucial day, but prefer an over-all briefer treatment. For them we have The Compact History of the Civil War by Richard and Trevor Dupuy. The writers are a father and son team, both of them retired colonels in the army. End papers of the book are maps and there is a list of symbols used there. It is a substantial book but not so long and involved as to frighten off the less devoted Civil War buff.

For those of us who like to look at pictures, the still kind, we have a book in the catalog department which will be ready for circulation in a few days or less. Published by the periodical American Heritage, and narrated by Bruce Catton, this is the most satisfying of them all, because it is so graphic and so beautiful. Many of the illustrations are in color, and they range from photographs by Mathew Brady to eye witness drawings and paintings. There are maps, many of them in color and showing the troups aligned for battle. The index is good. A big book and a fascinating one.

A letter from the son who is teaching at the University of Texas recounted an amusing thing. One of the students announced his intention to attend summer school somewhere or other, and my son suggested that a certain college in the midwest was excellent in his field. Came the reply, "I don't think I'd like it, Sir. They tell me when you go that far north you meet a lot of Yankees. I just don't think I could stand that."

So long, you-all.

MPVS Elects At Xmas Party

A gay coffee hour in celebration of Christmas preceded the regular meeting of the Monterey Peninsula Volunteeer Services last Friday morning at the USO. An unusually large number of members attended, bringing new toys and costume jewelry for the thrift shop.

The new officers for 1961, presented by the nominating committee at the November meeting, were unanimously voted in by the membership. These are: Miss Claire Kennedy, president, Mrs. S. Y. Cutler, vice-president, Mrs. August Nieto, corresponding secretary, Mrs. Robert Mackay Brown, vice-president, Mrs. Thurman Bane, treasurer. Following the business session at the January meeting, these officers will take over, after all reports for the current year have been given, and the complete record of MPVS gifts to community organizations listed and copies given to members. In addition to the above officers, Mrs. E. J. Murray was named chairman of the 1961 finance committee and Mrs. W. Lincoln Noelle was reappointed chairman of the thrift shop.

Mrs. Noelle reported on progress in remodeling the building at 728 Broadway, Seaside, in which the thrift shop will move January 3. She pointed out that despite generous contributions of local firms in both equipment and services, the expense involved in fitting out these new quarters would be considerable, but stated that a larger, more attractive place would undoubtedly increase shop profits for 1961. The present shop at 1583 Del Monte Boulevard will close its doors on December 16, giving time to move after the Christmas sale; also giving volunteer workers time for some vacation over the holidays.

Due to the larger size of the new quarters, Mrs. Noelle said that four volunteers will be needed.

Mrs. Archer Allen, chairman of the finance committee, reported the following gifts recommended to the membership: the sum of $250 to the Family Service Agency, earmarked specifically for furnishing a room at the agency's headquarters and to be used for interviewing clients; the customary Christmas gifts to USO personnel; $60 for the first volume of a series of valuable reference books requested by Monterey Peninsula College, entitled Mapping the Trans-Mississippi West by Carl I. Wheat. Mrs. Allen expressed the hope that eventually MPVS would contribute the series, five volumes in all. Members voted to accept all of these recommendations.

Frank Adams, USO director, expressed the warm appreciation of his organization for the gift of $500 from MPVS given before Thanksgiving, which enabled USO to entertain almost 1000 service men in various ways during the day.

Mrs. Arthur H. Black, membership and placement chairman, introduced Mrs. David L. Taylor of Pebble Beach as a new member and reported the resignation of Mrs. Walter Lyman Brown.

Mrs. S. Y. Cutler, hospitality chairman, announced that MPVS would next meet at the USO on January 6 at 1:30 o'clock, after which tea would be served at 3:00 o'clock, honoring new members.

Nancy reports the Berkeley production includes both special music and ballet sequences. Her parents plan to attend the closing performance.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

The spiritual basis of true supply and abundance will be set forth at Christian Science services Sunday in the Lesson-Sermon on the subject "God the Preserver of Man."

Matthew's acount of Christ Jesus' feeding of the five thousand men with five loaves and two fishes (Chap. 14) will be included in the Scriptural selections.

One of the correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy states (206:15): "In the scientific relation of God to man, we find that whatever blesses one blesses all, as Jesus showed with the loaves and the fishes,—Spirit, not matter, being the source of supply."

From James (1:17) the following will be read: "Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning."

CARMEL 96.7 PERCENT OF COMMUNITY CHEST GOAL

Carmel reached 96.7 of its $32,000 Community Chest quota this week, according to Brayton Witherall, executive secretary. The entire Peninsula is within 10 percent of its $160,000 quota, he said, pointing out that this is the earliest in the history of the Community Chest drives that the Peninsula has so nearly achieved its goal before Christmas.

The total of $144,000 is $2,200 more than was collected last year. He expressed his appreciation for Carmel's prompt response and his confidence that the goal will be reached within the next few days.

McCrearys Honeymoon

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce McCreary (Nancy Todd) are on a Caribbean honeymoon until December 22 when they will return here to spend Christmas in the Gordon House in Monterey with Mrs. McCreary's mother, Mrs. Martin Flavin, and Mrs. McCreary's eight year old daughter, Jane.

They were married on December 2 in a ceremony performed by the Reverend Pardee Erdman, a family friend, who came from Santa Barbara especially to read the marriage service. Nancy wore a French silk print dress. Her mother and daughter witnessed the ceremony, following which Nancy and Bruce flew to New York.

Saturday night they telephoned Mrs. Flavin to say they were about to fly to Bogota and Cartagena, both in Colombia. Following this, they planned to spend ten days on a small Caribbean island belonging to a friend of Bruce's, and would visit Jamaica before returning home in three weeks' time.

After Christmas, Nancy and Bruce will live in Berkeley for six months, then move to Sacramento and live on the old Whitney Ranch. Bruce is in charge of the engineering work for a new community being developed in this area.

He is a graduate of Stanford University in civil engineering and worked in Morocco and other foreign countries before returning to San Francisco to establish the engineering firm of McCreary and Koretski.

Nancy attended Sunset School before entering and graduating from Miss Hamlin's School in San Francisco. For the past year she has lived in the Gordon House in Monterey.

Knights Back From World Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Knight and their son, Buzz, are back in Carmel after a world tour by ship, car and train, including visits to 23 countries.

They left four months ago by ship. Their first voyage took them to Honolulu, Japan, China, Singapore, Manila, Australia, Ceylon; through the Suez Canal to Egypt, to Arabia; then the length of the Mediterranean and through the Straits of Gibraltar to Portugal.

The Knights picked up a car at this point, then drove through Spain, crossed to Majorca, resumed automobile touring to see Italy, Germany, Switzerland, France Luxembourg, Belgium and Holland. After an English Channel crossing they visited England and Scotland.

They shipped their car across the Atlantic with them by boat to Quebec, then drove west across Canada as far as Medicine Hat, Alberta, before crossing the boundary into the United States in Idaho.

A visit with their daughter, Alice (Mrs. Kenneth Bleisner), in Spokane, Washington, was next on the Knight's itinerary, then home.

"We traveled 40,000 miles in all; 8,300 miles by car," Mr. Knight reports.

They found their daughter, Allene (Mrs. Norman Weiner) waiting in Carmel for them. She is home from Germany where she has been in charge of the Service Club at Kaiserslauten. She will remain here with her parents until her husband completes his overseas duty in Germany with the U.S. Army.

Helena Heron

Mrs. Mary Helena Heron, wife of Herbert Heron, died peacefully in her sleep on Tuesday evening in their home at Guadalupe Street and Mountain View Avenue after a long period of failing health.

Mrs. Heron maintained a deep interest in books, art and drama. She was actively associated with the theatre in Carmel for many years. Her nature was sensitive, kindly and gracious and she had a great love for animals.

Helena Heron was born in New York City on March 16, 1884. She came to Carmel in 1922. Two years later she married Herbert Heron, founder of the Forest Theater. She assisted Mr. Heron with his Shakespearean productions in the outdoor theatre and designed the sets and created the costumes for his productions of Hamlet, Twelfth Night, The Merry Wives of Windsor and Julius Caesar. She also played many parts in Forest Theater, Golden Bough Theatre and Arts and Crafts Theatre productions. In 1924 she was one of Edward Kuster's students at the Golden Bough School of the Theater.

Helena and Herbert Heron designed and built the Seven Arts Building around a court at the southwest corner of Lincoln Street and Ocean Avenue. She assisted Mr. Heron, until her health failed, in the operation of the Seven Arts Book Shop, and established, with her husband, the first art supply store in Carmel.

Private funeral services will be held.

Letters..

December 8, 1960

Editor, The Carmel Pine Cone:

What future? Better, or only bigger? It is time we stopped defining progress as "bigger", and realize that real progress is "better" and not necessarily "more".

The Carmel area, the Monterey Peninsula. Sure! Economic opportunity surveys, Industrial Potential surveys, population growth surveys, all are needed that we may intelligently plan for the future. But what about a survey of the more important springs of living, —the intangibles, such as beauty, and art, and music, and poetry, and flowers, the spiritual things, if you will? Don't neglect them. "Without vision the people perish."

From those surveys the experts can and do predict what the future will bring—unless we do something about it. For example, they may show that the population of the Peninsula in 25 years will be many times what it is now so that our country and open spaces will have been crowded out by the Population Explosion.,—unless we do something about it. But can we? Yes, we can, and it is time we all realized our legal powers.

California law authorizes communities to adopt Master Plans and to enact regulations for putting them into effect. (State Planning Act, Sec. 65460 & 65540). The plan must include "standards of population density" (Sec. 65462c), and it may include an element for the "conservation . . . of natural resources, including water . . . forests, soils, rivers . . . wild life . . ." (Sec. 65463).

So we see the County and the cities of the Peninsula can, legally set bounds to the number of people to be accommodated in this area, and can do much toward preserving our landscape. If we want to! Who does not want to? Is it those who look upon this place as a place to make a living only, rather than as a place to live? Is it those who don't care?

I want to, don't you? Our beautiful Monterey Peninsula should be preserved in its physical loveliness, spaciousness and cultural charm. So, let's do it!

Progress means Better,—not necessarily, More.

C. W. Fisher

sile age deviation of democracy." He expressed the disappointment of a large group of citizens, who had been ignored by the planning commission, and who had hoped for consideration of their wishes by the council, when he criticized council's passing the planning commission's ordinance and then referring back to the planning commission for re-study elements that the citizens have protested in public hearings before both planning commission and council. "The council has the power of decision. Yet the council expects the commission to cure what the council has power to cure," O'Gara concluded.

Members of the Highlands Association, this week, decided to oppose the Allamprese subdivision planned for Fern Canyon at the county planning commission meeting Tuesday at 1:30 o'clock, according to William K. Stewart, association president. They empowered their study committee on the subdivision, headed by Philip McDougal, to make the protest on the grounds of incompatibility, and lack of time to work with the subdivider's representatives on plan revision.

The subdivision, planned for steep hillside terrain, requires deep cuts to provide mandatory wide county roadways. Easements from property owners would have to be obtained to widen Mount Devon and Corona Roads. Also land could be condemned for easements for sewage plant and system for the development, according to Mr. Stewart.

Association members felt the subdivision was incompatible with the nature and character of the Highlands community; also with the nature of the terrain. They learned a grove of native rhododendrons was not situated on the Allamprese property. Previously, Highlands residents feared this grove might be destroyed.

The annual membership meeting of the Arts and Humanities Council will be held on December 15, 7:30 o'clock in the evening, in the Golden Bough Circle Theatre.

Following a business meeting, election of members to the board of directors and the president's report on activities of the past year, there will be a program. The Circle Theatre will present their latest play, King of Hearts, by Jean Kerr and Eleanor Brooke.

Monterey Municipal Court Judge Gordon Campbell has been appointed Monterey County Superior Court Judge pro tem, according to Chief Justice Phil S. Gibson of the California Supreme Court. Judge Campbell will preside in Salinas until December 31. He will replace Judge Anthony Brazil who is convalescing from a heart attack.

Justice Harold White of Castroville will replace Judge Campbell on the Monterey municipal bench until the end of the year.

Judge Campbell, a Carmel resident and former chairman of the board of the Carmel Unified School District, is the son of the late Argyll Campbell, former Carmel city attorney.

Council Gives Its Blessing To 36 More Pines For Carmel

in new sidewalk jobs. These handsome, strongly growing youngsters are serving their first season as living Christmas trees, undecorated and unlighted, as Carmel likes them.

The council authorized decoration of the two official Christmas trees, on Ocean Avenue, at Junipero and at Lincoln to be lighted from December 15 to January 3.

To top off the woodsy items of the agenda, City Engineer Clayton Neill unrolled the plan for Junipero Street, Ocean to Eighth, which he had prepared with Street Commissioner Francis Whitaker. Victor Velissaratos and Wilma Cook, who have taken an intense and censorious interest in several plans for the "improvement" of this portion of Junipero Street were invited to join the council in looking at the plan. It showed continuous center green strip—no center parking — from Ocean to Seventh, and another continuous center strip from Seventh to Eighth. The oaks in the Seventh and Junipero Street intersection, frequently threatened in previous plans, are to be retained. There is to be no formal rock work to spoil the natural appearance of the center strips, which are to be filled as full as possible with new pines. Neill has the cluster of oaks in the west right-of-way between Ocean and Seventh marked red for removal, but they will be put on council tree tour before any decisions will be made about them. Whitaker received approval for a retaining "well" to protect the pines in the center strip near Seventh which are below street level. This was the only formal action taken. The suspicions of Mr. Velissaratos and Mrs. Cook appeared to be allayed. Admiral C. W. Fisher, another long standing member of the "what plots for the destruction of the natural attractiveness of Junipero Street is the street department cooking up now? club" was not present.

ROBERT OBERFOHREN HURT

Carmel volunteer firemen answered a call for the Red Cross ambulance on Monday afternoon at 5:33 o'clock. They picked up Robert J. Oberfohren at Seventh Avenue and Dolores Street and took him to the Peninsula Community Hospital. He had suffered head injuries in a fall.
